BIG SHIPMENT OF LIVE STOCK IS MADE HERE

Pickaway Co-operative Association Has Big Week—
17 Floors Are Loaded

Pickaway livestock producers kept Harry J. Briggs, manager, and his assistants quite busy during the past week in assembling and moving livestock through the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative association. Seventeen floors of livestock were shipped cooperatively through the county association during the week.

These shipments consisted of five floors of cattle, 11 floors of hogs and one floor of calves. With the price on hogs affording a satisfactory return on corn, livestock farmers are interested in supporting their cooperative service, to the extent of getting maximum returns.

The cattle market, although not as favorable as the hog market has been through the cooperative service, has been returning very satisfactory prices to the feeder who finishes his cattle in good condition. One load of heavy heifers, 970 pounds average brought $11.50 net. One car of feeders brought $12.00 net and three cars of medium to choice steers brought $13.00 net.

The livestock cooperative service is under the direction of the board of directors comprised of the following men: J. B. Stevenson, president; George C. Gerhard, G. M. Wertman, Paul Cromley, Edward Kreisel, C. E. Dick and W. H. Skinner.

The report for the month of March shows that the livestock sales represented $39,276.93 and that shipments consisted of 41 floors of stock.

NIGHT BLAZE LEVELS BARN

Loss of $8,000 Suffered In Saturday Fire On Farm of Phil Dunlap.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large barn, its contents, a shed and a granary on the Phil Dunlap farm in Ross-co, 12 miles south of Williamsport at 9:30 o'clock Saturday night, causing a $8,000 loss.

The fire was discovered by neighbors during the absence of Mr. Dunlap, who was in Chillicothe. It had apparently started in the haymow of the barn.

The blaze, which also destroyed all of the contents of the barn, spread to a nearby shed, 150 feet long and 30 feet wide, and to a granary, both of which were razed.

The Williamsport fire department was summoned and made the run to the farm in 15 minutes. The firemen, under the leadership of C. E. Hill, were able to save a building in which 5000 bushels of corn were stored. The building was only six feet from the burning granary.

Of the $8,000 loss, only $3,500 is covered by insurance.

LARGE FIRE TRUCK WILL BE REPAIRED

The large pumper truck of the Circleville fire department will be taken by Fire Chief Talmer Wise to the plant of the Ahrens-Fox company in Cincinnati Tuesday to have a new clutch and carburetor installed. The truck will be repaired and the pumper overhauled. These repairs will place both trucks in first class condition as the smaller truck was recently repaired.

Passage of Federal Farm Board Bill By Congress Within Week Predicted

Democrats, However, Plan To Offer Export Debiture
Plan as Substitute.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Abandoning the plan of farm relief for which they waged a bitter 8 year fight, members of the house agriculture committee today laid before congress the new $500,000,000 federal farm board bill, and predicted its passage in the house within a week.

All of the enthusiasm which accompanied the opening of congressional battles for the old McNary-Haugen bill and its equalization fee was absent as "farm bloc" leaders prepared to accept the last election as a mandate to pass a bill designed to place the solution of the farm problem in the hands of President Hoover.

Rep. Haugen (R) of Iowa, chairman of the committee, will sponsor the new bill, asserting that it carries out the Republican party's campaign pledges. At the same time he reiterated his faith in the equalization fee of the old bill as the most effective farm relief remedy of all.

PASSAGE PREDICTED
Under the plan adopted by the "farm bloc" leaders, the bill will be taken up for general debate on Wednesday, after President Hoover's message has been delivered to the special session.

While the Republican leaders were confident that the new measure would be approved by an overwhelming vote, there were indications that Democratic opponents would make a spirited effort to obtain the adoption of a substitute measure.

Rep. Jones (D) of Texas, who with Rep. Nelson (D) of Missouri, voted against the federal farm board bill in the house agriculture committee, announced that he would offer the export debenture plan as a substitute.

It is expected also that an effort will be made to substitute the old McNary-Haugen bill.

MEANSIDE SENATOR McNary (R) of Oregon, chairman of the senate agriculture committee, planned to force a vote in committee on his own farm bill, similar to the house measure, within the next few days.

OPPOSITION AHEAD
Already considerable opposition has developed to the bill in the senate. A senate bloc apparently was being formed to force the inclusion of the export debenture plan—under which a part of tariff receipts would be used to reimburse farmers for losses on export supplies.

Senators Norris (R) of Nebraska, Norbeck (R) of South Dakota, Caraway (D) of Arkansas and Heflin (D) of Alabama, all have declared for the debenture plan. The National Grange, which advocates the measure, has a membership of 800,000 farmers in 33 states.

The outstanding feature of the house bill, in the opinion of its farmers, is that wide latitude is given the federal farm board to solve the farmers' problems, and the board is made directly responsible to the president.

CLEVELAND, April 15.—As the simple, impressive funeral rites in Trinity Episcopal Cathedral began this morning in honor of the late Myron T. Herrick, the city came to rest for five minutes by proclamation of the mayor. Factories shut down their machines, public schools and municipal offices ceased activity and remained silent. Electric power was shut off all over the city for one minute.

There was no eulogy or funeral oration and the services were the same as those for any other Episcopal funeral except for the flag draped casket beneath the chancel.

Parnely Herrick, the ambassador's son, and his family, sat in the mourners' pew along with O. R. Herrick, brother of the deceased, who is himself aged and convalescing from a serious illness. He came for the funeral from his farm near Canton.

Col. Lindbergh sat nearby. Others in the mourning section were Gov. Cooper and his staff, Postmaster-General W. A. R. Brown, personal representative of President Hoover; Brig. Gen. D. Nolan, Lieut. Col. Harry Hawley, and Assistant Secretary of the Navy David Ingalls.

CRITES FARM HIT BY FIRE

Six Routed From Beds In Destruction of Greenhouses
Near London.

Six persons were routed from their beds and lost all their personal effects early Saturday morning in a blaze which razed the Hewett P. Mulford & Co. greenhouses on the H. M. Crites farm, six miles northeast of London.

Four greenhouses, the office building, packing shed, and sleeping quarters in connection with the greenhouse property, were completely wrecked.

Thousands of flower plants were destroyed in the blaze which was estimated to have caused a damage of $50,000.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline torch in the boiler room.

Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Stevens of Dayton, living on the greenhouse property, lost all their clothing and furniture, valued at $1,000, including a number of priceless heirlooms.

Mulford, operator of the greenhouse, A. E. Crane, John Culbert, Everett Corliss and W. C. Green, employees of the greenhouse, all of Lebanon, and Mrs. Stevens, were routed from their beds by the flames.

Cubs Only Club With Better Team On Eve of Baseball's 1929 Season

Winter Deals Fail To Strengthen
Several Outfits, But
Hopes Burn Brightly

By DAVID J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 15.—Fires of hope burn brightly today in the 16 camps of major league baseball as, with life before them and the past forgotten, they await the inaugural of the 1929 season, 24 hours hence. They are fires that need not wind, nor fuel, and neither draft nor bellows. For they burn strictly on the sustenance of self-generated enthusiasm.

Hope, both in baseball and in life, always seems eternal in April.

All of the entries are not strictly entitled to the emotion in question, however, altered values having been made necessary in some cases by what has transpired during recent weeks. The Philadelphia Athletics, for example, do not seem to be as good as they should be or as they thought they were. Neither are the Detroit Tigers nor the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Chicago Cubs are at least plus in this scale of reckoning but the rest of the National league contention—the Giants, Pirates, Cardinals and Reds—do not look the part of clubs that have greatly bettered themselves. Whereas, the world champion Yankees, probably are a minus quantity in comparison with their 1928 capabilities.

ATHLETICS HIT
Injuries and a between-seasons depreciation of morale seem to have claimed the Athletics for their own.

The Yanks figure to profit thereby, at least in respect to one of their arch-rivals. But even if they do succeed in losing one rival, they probably will gain another. The Washington Senators, under Walter Johnson, appear to have reclaimed some of the greatness they knew in 1924-25. The Tigers haven't laughed off their pitching and the failure of Schulte at shortstop was nobody's gift to humanity in general, so if Harris does any better than fourth he will be a man, indeed.

The St. Louis Browns may be better or worse than they were in 1928 but probably will prove to be not very much of either. It would seem that the Yanks and Athletics will have to come back quite a way for the Browns to have their chance. The Yanks will come back; how far, depends on Pennock's arm and the general performance of Mr. C. Ruth, which to date has been not altogether gaudy.

The Cubs are one of few National league outfits that have sustained the handicappers during the training season. If there is anything in particular the matter with this club, with its hitting and sound pitching, it hasn't been discerned as yet by the nude eye. John McGraw cannot say the same because he needs a right hand hitting outfielder and the reason John needs him is that he, the outfielder, is trying to play second base. That makes two positions in which the Giants are uncertain and one uncertainty usually is away too many. The Giants, of course, will contend all the way; so will the Pirates and Cards.

The former may not be as good as they were last year, when they were almost good enough. Traynor's injuries and the trading of Wright left the infield somewhat askew. The Cards have something of the same problem but, if Haney makes the rifle at third base, leaving Frisch free to return to second, its solution will be that much simpler. Those elderly pitchers are getting no better, however.

REDS ABOUT SAME

I can't see where the Reds have done themselves any particular good but the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox, having more improvements coming to them, possibly are better for another season.

The White Sox seem to be somewhat the same, which means that they are nothing much. Outside of the fact that they gave Petty for a bad arm in the Wright deal, everything is great in Brooklyn. The club is dying on its fallen arches and wholesale illness has done the rest. The Phillies might have topped the Dodgers except for the misfortune of Thevenow's injury.

The Braves, they say, are not as good as they were. I don't believe it. They simply couldn't be as bad as that.

ADJOURN QUORUM

The opening day of the session is simple. Both senate and house convened at noon and adjourned immediately adjourned after the routine business of notifying the White House that congress was in session and ready for business.

Tomorrow President Hoover will send his message, outlining his views on tariff and farm bills. He will counsel against any general revision of tariff schedules, and probably will include a recommendation for the repeal of the national origins section of the immigration act. A warm fight is threatened over that recommendation, the leadership being supplied within the president's own party.

Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, successfully filibustered repeal of the origins clause to death in the closing hours of the 76th congress, and he stands ready to renew the battle any time.

The new session is fraught with considerable political significance. It provides the first test of President Hoover's party leadership.

DRY LAWS TO FRONT
Despite the limited scope of the session, the usual flood of bills and resolutions will be introduced and probably debated.

Prohibition is in for another slugging because of recent developments—the sinking of the Canadian schooner I'm Alone, the killing of an Aurora, Ill., mother by enforcement agents, the effects of the Jones law, etc. The Anti-Prohibitionists plan to capitalize these happenings at the first opportunity.

Numerous bills will be introduced designed to reform the federal reserve board, and to curb speculation in Wall street. Probably they all will be sent to plenary holes, there to slumber until the regular session next December when a real and determined effort is to be made to "Get Wall street."

GOLF IS POPULAR
Despite the threatening weather, more than 50 golfers played Sunday on the Pickaway County Club course. The permanent greens were used and are in first shape. On an erratic count, 10 caddies were on duty, and about a town in droves when the club became a drowsy. The club is opening at the club is planned for May 14.

When a fire burning out at the home of Rockford Brown, mail carrier, on E. Union-st., ignited the roof of the house at noon Sunday the fire department contained the damage to small holes in the roofing. The damage is estimated at $5.

FOUR SPECIAL TASKS AHEAD OF ASSEMBLY

Farm Relief, Tariff Revision,
Census and Re-apportionment
ment Are Issues.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—A new congress, the "Hoover Congress," took the center of the national stage today for an indefinite run.

Summoned into special session by the new president, the lawmakers elected last November have four specific duties to perform: enact a farm relief measure, revise the tariff, provide for the holding of the next census, and apportion itself.

If congress will do these things and go home President Hoover will be pleased. If, on the other hand, congress gets out of hand and goes on a rampage of legislating the White House will be considerably perturbed. President Hoover wants a quick, snappy session that will settle itself to the redemption of campaign pledges on farm relief, tariff revision. Everything else can go over until the regular session in December.

GROUND WORK LAYS
The ground work for the session has already been laid. When the legislators assembled today they were ready the final draft of farm relief bill worked out according to the ideas expressed in the Republican platform and the campaign speeches of Mr. Hoover.

There was also in the final stages of preparation a tariff revising upward a wide range of schedules, and granting tariff shares in the general revenue of the country.

The principal task of the session is to hold the new congress within the limits mandated by the president. The house has a few difficulties for that, a few committees will be organized. It is the senate that gives the administration most work.

ing a continuing body, the already is organized and prepared to undertake any kind of business.

Structure of Greenhouses
Near London.

Six persons were routed from their beds and lost all their personal effects early Saturday morning in a blaze which razed the Hewett P. Mulford & Co., greenhouses on the H. M. Crites farm, six miles northeast of London.

Four greenhouses, the office building, packing shed, and sleeping quarters in connection with the greenhouse property, were completely wrecked.

Thousands of flower plants were destroyed in the blaze which was estimated to have caused a damage of $50,000.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline torch in the boiler room.

Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Stevens of Dayton, living on the greenhouse property, lost all their clothing and furniture, valued at $1,000, including a number of priceless heirlooms.

Mulford, operator of the greenhouse; A. B. Crane, John Culbert, Everett Corliss and W. C. Greer, employees of the greenhouse, all of Lebanon, and Mrs. Stevens, were routed from their beds by the flames.

Mulford and the men saved a carload of iris bulbs that had been prepared for shipment. They were valued at $3,000. Order records of the firm also were saved, as was a pet dog belonging to Mulford.

Cubs Only Club With Better Team On Eve of Baseball's 1929 Season

Winter Deals Fail to Strengthen Several Outfits, But Hopes Burn Brightly

By DAVID J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 15.—Fires of hope burn brightly today in the 16 camps of major league baseball as, with life before them and the past forgotten, they await the inaugural of the 1929 season, 24 hours hence. They are fires that need not wind, nor fuel, and neither draft nor bellows. For they burn strictly on the sustenance of self-generated enthusiasm. Hope, both in baseball and in life, always seems eternal in April.

All of the entries are not strictly entitled to the emotion in question, however, altered values having been made necessary in some cases by what has transpired during recent weeks. The Philadelphia Athletics, for example, do not seem to be as good as they should be or as they thought they were. Neither are the Detroit Tigers nor the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Chicago Cubs are at least plus in this scale of reckoning but the rest of the National league contention—the Giants, Pirates, Cardinals and Reds—do not look the part of clubs that have greatly bettered themselves. Whereas, the world champion Yankees probably are a minus quantity in comparison with their 1928 capabilities.

ATHLETICS HIT
Injuries and a between-seasons depreciation of morale seem to have claimed the Athletics for their own.

The Yanks figure to profit thereby, at least in respect to one of their arch-rivals. But even if they do succeed in losing one rival, they probably will gain another. The Washington Senators, under Walter Johnson, appear to have reclaimed some of the greatness they knew in 1924-25. The Tigers haven't laughed off their pitching and the failure of Schulte at shortstop is nobody's gift to humanity in general, so if Harris does any better than fourth he will be a man, indeed. The St. Louis Browns may be better or worse than they were in 1928 but probably will prove to be not very much of either. It would seem that the Yanks and Athletics will have to come back quite a way for the Browns to have their chance. The Yanks will come back; how far, depends on Pennock's arm and the general performance of Mr. E. Ruth, which to date has been not altogether gaudy.

The Cubs are one of few National league entries that have sustained the handicappers during the training season. If there is anything in particular the matter with this club, with its hitting and sound pitching, it hasn't been discerned as yet by the nude eye. John McGraw cannot say the same because he needs a right hand hitting outfielder and the reason John needs him is that he, the outfielder, is trying to play second base. That makes two positions in which the Giants are uncertain and one uncertainty usually is away too many. The Giants, of course, will contend all the way; so will the Pirates and Cards.

The former may not be as good as they were last year, when they were almost good enough. Traynor's injuries and the trading of Wright left the infield somewhat askew. The Cards have something of the same problem but, if Haney makes the rifle at third base, leaving Frisch free to return to second, its solution will be that much simpler. Those elderly pitchers are getting no better, however.

REDS ABOUT SAME
I can't see where the Reds have done themselves any particular good but the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox, having more improvements coming to them, possibly are better for another season.

The White Sox seem to be somewhat the same, which means that they are nothing much. Outside of the fact that they gave Petty for a bad arm in the Wright deal, everything is great in Brooklyn. The club is dying on its fallen arches and wholesale illness has done the rest. The Phillies might have topped the Dodgers except for the misfortune of Thevenou's injury. The Braves, they say, are not as good as they were. I don't believe it. They simply couldn't be as bad as that.

LEADERS WILL VISIT SCHOOLS

Entries In Boys' and Girls' Projects Will Be Sought
During Tour.

This week County Club Leaders and Agent H. S. Lewis will start out on a definite schedule of visitations to the schools throughout Pickaway-co in the interest of Boys' and Girls' club enrollment for 1929.

The Boys' and Girls' club program is a primary project of the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau and is designed for the purpose of showing boys and girls efficiency in carrying out different types of work and to train them in developing leadership responsibilities.

The record of Boys' and Girls' club members of the past several years throughout Ohio is indicative of the value of the training secured through club work. The club program in Pickaway-co offers the following projects to boys and girls: Food, Clothing, Poultry, Corn, Pig and Steer clubs.

Any boy or girl in Pickaway-co between the ages of 10 and 21 is eligible to take part in this work. The different types of work offered through the club program will be explained during the visits to the different schools. Club enrollments will close May 10.

ROOF FIRE SUNDAY

When a fire burning out at the home of Rockford Brown, mail carrier, on E. Union-st, ignited the roof of the house at noon Sunday the fire department confined the damage to small holes in the roofing. The damage is estimated at $5.

FOUR SPECIFIC TASKS AHEAD OF ASSEMBLY

Farm Relief, Tariff Revision,
Census and Re-apportionment Are Issues.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—A new congress, the "Hoover Congress," took the center of the national stage today for an indefinite run.

Summoned into special session by the new president, the lawmakers elected last November have four specific duties to perform—enact a farm relief measure, revise the tariff, provide for the taking of the next census, and reapportionment.

If congress will do these things and go home President Hoover will be pleased. If, on the other hand, congress gets out of hand and goes on a rampage of general legislating the White House will be considerably perturbed. President Hoover wants a quick and snappy session that will confine itself to the redemption of campaign pledges on farm relief and tariff revision. Everything else can go over until the regular session in December.

GROUND WORK LAID
The ground work for the session has already been laid. When the legislators assembled today there was ready the final draft of a farm relief bill worked out according to the ideas expressed in the Republican platform and the campaign speeches of Mr. Hoover.

There was also in the final stages of preparation a tariff bill, revising upward a wide variety of schedules, and granting relief to those industries which have not shared in the general prosperity of the country.

The principal task of the leaders is to hold the new congress within the limits marked out by the president. The house provides few difficulties, for there only a few committees will be organized. It is the senate that gives the new administration most worry. Being a continuing body, the senate already is organized and is prepared to undertake any and all kinds of business.

ADJOURN QUICKLY
The opening day schedule was simple. Both senate and house convened at noon and almost immediately adjourned after the routine business of notifying the White House that congress was in session and ready for business.

Tomorrow President Hoover will send his message, outlining his views on tariff and farm relief. He will counsel against any general revision of tariff schedules, and probably will include, too, a recommendation for the repeal of the national origins section of the immigration act. A warm fight is threatened over that recommendation, the leadership being supplied within the president's own party. Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, successfully filibustered repeal of the origins clause to death in the closing hours of the 70th congress, and he stands ready to renew the battle any time.

The new session is fraught with considerable political significance. It provides the first test of President Hoover's party leadership.

DRY LAWS TO FRONT
Despite the limited scope of the session, the usual flood of bills and resolutions will be introduced and probably debated.

Prohibition is in for another airing because of recent developments—the sinking of the Canadian schooner I'm Alone, the killing of an Aurora, Ill., mother by enforcement agents, the effects of the Jones law, etc. The Anti-Prohibitionists plan to capitalize these happenings at the first opportunity.

Numerous bills will be introduced designed to reform the federal reserve board, and to curb speculation in Wall street. Probably they all will be sent to pigeon holes, there to slumber until the regular session next December when a real and determined effort is to be made to "Get Wall street."

GOLF IS POPULAR

Despite the threatening weather, more than 50 golfers played Sunday on the Pickaway Country Club course. The permanent greens were used and are in fine shape. On an erratic count, 65 caddies were on duty, and came to town in droves when the rain became a downpour. The formal opening at the club is being planned for May 15.

SALE IS SUCCESS

Dan Siegel, of Dan's Dollar Stores, is well pleased with the response of the people of Circleville and Pickaway-co to the opening sale of his new store. Mr. Siegel stated that the sales for this store has been beyond his expectation and the crowds kept up until the last minute. Of all the stores he has opened the Circleville store sales has surpassed any, he said.

KONJOLA ENDS ELEVEN YEARS OF SUFFERING

Stomach Almost Ruined By Medicines Taken To Relieve Rheumatism and Neuritis.

MRS. A. J. TIPTON
"I can not find words to express my gratitude for Konjola, nor my amazement at the way it relieves me after eleven years of dreadful suffering from neuritis and rheumatism," said Mrs. A. J. Tipton, 215 Oak Street, Ludlow.
"To add to my pain, my stomach was almost ruined by the strong medicines I took in the hope of relieving the rheumatism and neuritis. These wrecked my digestive system, but did not do the least bit of good. My entire body was a mass of aches and pains.
"When Konjola was recommended to me I was inclined to scoff for I had no more faith in medicines. But friends insisted. The result was simply wonderful. My stomach was strengthened so that I could digest anything. I feared that this relief might be only temporary, but months have passed and the magnificent health that Konjola restored to me is with me yet. No wonder Konjola is known as the master medicine, and I recommend it from the bottom of my happy heart."
Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, at Hamilton & Ryan drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

RUSSELL GLEASON

Russell Gleason is proof that "blood will tell." Son of James Gleason, noted actor and playwright, Russell was slated to complete his course at the University of California before making up his mind as to his ultimate profession. But he found his way secretly to the Pathe studio, was given a test, and cast in "The Shady Lady," in which Phyllis Haver starred. Then he got a nice role in "Strange Cargo." Now he is under contract to Pathe, and the university course seems to be ditched. A nice salary in the hand is worth an A.B. some future June, opines Russell.

Freshour, Miss Margaret Thomas presented the following program: Reading, "The Girl Friend," by Nina Wilcox Putnam, by Mrs. Alice Brundage; Piano solo by Mrs. C. C. Hatfield; Current events by Miss Carrie Umstead; Vocal solo, "April Girl," by Mrs. F. M. Snyder, accompanied by Miss Isabel Snyder; Reading, "When Nell Leaves Home," by Mrs. Mollie Pugh and a piano solo by Miss Isabel Snyder closed the program. During the social hour the committee served ice cream, mergues and coffee.

Soft water keeps clothes white

HARD water always leaves clothes gray, no matter how much you wash and rinse. Hard water has something in it with which the soap combines. Scum forms at once. This scum gets into clothes. You never can rinse it all out.
Softened hard water with Melo and you have a very fine cleaner, with or without soap. Scum doesn't form in this water. Clothes washed in it are as white as snow. Melo gives soap more effect on clothes. Get a can of Melo today at your grocer's.

DRUNKEN DRIVER IS ASSESSED 2 FINES

H. J. Shipe, Columbus, arrested Friday by Sheriff Frank Davis a mile north of Circleville in a new Hupmobile sedan, was fined $100 and costs on two charges when he pleaded guilty Saturday afternoon before Probate Judge E. A. Brown. He was charged with driving while intoxicated and with possessing intoxicating liquor. His driving right was revoked for a year.
Shipe said he is an invalid, having suffered 18 broken bones in a railroad accident four years ago. He paid his fines in cash.

Fates Proved Unkind to Spanish Explorer

Capt. Pedro De Quiros long had been intrigued by tales of a vast continent in the Southwest Pacific ocean and finally crossed Philip III of Spain to let him go in search of it. On July 27, 1605 at Callao, Peru, he drew a flourish under his signature, commissioning the captains of his two ships, and was ready to sail on "the discovery of the unknown austral regions of the South sea by the order of the king." One of the captains presented himself, respectfully asking De Quiros to lay down a course for them to follow.
"Let her go as she is," returned De Quiros grimly. "God will take us somewhere!"
In the following year they sighted one of the islands of the New Hebrides group, and De Quiros, under the impression that it was his long sought land, named it La Australia de Espritu Santo. Followed sickness and discontent, the crew mutinied and forced a return to Mexico. But not before the Quiros had caught a glimpse of a long mysterious coast that to this day some believe was the Australia of his dreams. Another expedition was organized by him in Spain but on reaching Panama he died of a fever and there he was buried in an unknown grave.—Devout News.

Warship Sets Record for Lengthy Pennant

After United States men of war have been on foreign service for more than a year they are entitled to fly the pennant bound pennant on their departure from the foreign port and on entering the home port. The pennant is a bunch of white stripes having a red and white stripe running its length with the exception of the blue field surmounted by thirteen stars at its head. The length of this pennant is determined by the number of men and officers in the crew. One foot is allowed for each individual in the ship's crew. The longest home ward bound pennant in recent years was on the Pittsburgh when she returned from four years service as flagship of the American forces in European waters. This pennant was 290 feet long. In order to overcome the difficulty of flying the pennant, about fifty balloons were used to give it additional buoyancy. After the Pittsburgh returned to home waters every member of the crew received a part of this pennant as a keep sake.

Narrow Escape

A small child who much disliked milk pudding had been made to finish it before leaving the table. When she had at last eaten it she asked if she might get down.
"Yes, when you have said grace," said her mother.
"But I've nothing to be thankful for," answered the child sulkily.
"Very well, then," said mother, "stay where you are."
This was too much for the child so, putting her two small hands together, she said, in a loud, clear voice, "Thank God I wasn't sick. Now may I get down?"

Promoter Confesses Torch Murder

A new type of criminal stands revealed in the alleged confession of H. Colin Campbell, right, real estate promoter of Elizabeth, N. J., to the killing of Mildred Mowry Campbell, left, whose blazing body was found near Cranford, N. J., last February. The police are of the belief that he is responsible also for the similar murder of Margaret Brown one year ago. The body of Mrs. Campbell was identified by former friends from Greenville, Pa., where she lived.

Disturbed Honeymoon

The little man dived along the platform as the train was moving out and made for the last carriage at the window of which a woman was frantically waving her hand and keeling.
He was about to grasp the handle of the door when the porter pulled him back.
"You mustn't board the train while it is moving," said the porter. "Besides that compartment is engaged."
"Engaged?" shouted the little man, dancing about in his rage, as he watched the train disappearing. "Of course, it's engaged! I engaged it myself, and that's my wife at the window off on her honeymoon!"—London Answers.

No Warships Purchased

No European country has ever built or sold a war vessel to the United States government. The only case where the United States has had vessels built in a foreign country was that of the Chinese river gunboats, which were built in China, under contract to the United States.
Among the diseases of which the causes have not yet been discovered are measles, mumps, chickenpox, smallpox, trachoma, and cancer. The way, therefore, to fight such enemies of man is to keep the body at highest efficiency.

Passé

There was a little gathering in the church vestible, waiting for the new baby to be christened and friends of the family were taking the opportunity to admire the tiny newcomer. Over in the corner three-year-old Betty Lou sat in lonely state, a wee bit jealous as the attention being paid the baby brother. Finally an observant friend noticed it and cried out tactfully, "What a pretty dress you have on, Betty Lou!"
"Yes," sighed the child disconsolately, "but it's all my own."

PARACHUTE FAILS; AVIATOR IS KILLED

GUMMO, MO., April 15 — The body of Lieutenant Sharpley Gray, airplane observer of the Missouri National Guard air unit, who leaped from his plane in a parachute after the engine had stalled near here last night was found today, near the wrecked plane.
Captain William B. Wimmers, pilot of the plane which was enroute to Lambert field from Jefferson City, also leaped with a parachute and escaped with a slight back injury.
Gray's parachute was said to be unopened.
The pair were returning from a training trip to Jefferson City.

Timber From the Tropics

It is estimated that the American use of tropical timbers is a very important factor in our own domestic timber problem. Some believe that these forests will be called upon to bridge the hiatus that is bound to exist between the exhaustion of our wild timber crop and the harvest time of our man-managed forests. Others believe that they will form a permanent source of timber to replace some of our own special purpose hardwoods.
All are agreed that, in any case, we cannot fully and completely out-line our own forestry problem without taking into consideration all the factors that may influence the outcome.

Birds Dashed to Death

According to authorities on bird life, the lightness of the New England coast causes the death of thousands of sea fowl every year. In their migrations to and from the southlands the birds, if caught in a storm, try to find a safe haven. The fixed white lights seem to have the greatest attraction for them. Flying at high speed, they dash themselves against the thick lenses and are either killed on the spot or are stunned and fall to the rocks or the sea below and perish. Strangely enough, flashing lights and also red beams apparently repel them, but the blinding, steady white rays take heavy toll from their ranks.
Contrary to popular belief the sea fowl do not seek southern climes to avoid cold weather.

Can't Reach Market

The Pan-American Union says that though Paraguay is noted for its wonderful orange crops, the oranges are allowed to go to waste by the thousands because of lack of transportation. In the republic there are only 274 miles of railroad and practically no highways which penetrate the region where oranges grow. Oranges raised near the railroad and near the Paraguay river are shipped in larger quantities to Buenos Aires.

Ocean Liner Goes West

Inc., that three-letter addition to the former "United States Lines," has made a radical departure in the liquor policy of vessels owned by this newly made corporation. From now on it's going to flow like water, just as on European vessels, and should be just as popular as other "wet" liners, according to Joseph E. Sheedy (above), vice-president of the company.

HOSPITAL TREATMENT FAILS-SPINAGO BRINGS HEALTH

Mother of 10 Children Freed of Agony From Terrible Indigestion By New Tonic Containing Spinach.

Mrs. Jay Henry who has resided in Circleville for 22 years at 586 E. Franklin St., is the latest local woman to praise Spinago, the new tonic containing Spinach being introduced to Circleville sufferers at The Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St. When Mrs. Henry came to the store the other day for her third bottle, she made the following remarkable statement:

"Spinago has certainly given me relief from a very terrible case of stomach trouble which has affected me for years. During all those years I suffered terribly from gas and indigestion; these horrible pains would shoot through me after every meal; nothing digested and very bad bloating kept me in misery most of the time. I could not eat much of anything because of the fearful pains I always experienced and I didn't have any appetite whatever. My bowels became more and more irregular, and the constipation with which I had always been bothered, grew worse all the time. During the past year it got so bad that it was unbearable and many and many a day I was unable to even get my necessary work done.

MRS. JAY HENRY

"I doctored and took one medicine after another seeking relief, and twice during the past year I went to a Columbus hospital for treatments. But nothing did me any good until the lucky day when I started on Spinago. I have taken two bottles of this wonderful medicine and am happy to say that I am now free of these terrible agonies. No more bloating or indigestion; no more constipation or stomach trouble; no more gas and no more pains. I have a healthy appetite and can eat anything and enjoy it without fear of pain and misery.

"I can truthfully say that I have received more relief since I began taking Spinago than I have received for many months, and that it has done me more good than the treatments at the hospital. As a tonic and appetizer it is wonderful, and cannot be surpassed by any medicine. I heartily recommend this super medicine to any one seeking relief from my troubles."

Mrs. Henry, the mother of ten children is just one among the many Circleville residents who have found that stomach, liver, bowel and kidney complaints simply can't stand up against the action of Spinago; that indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness and pains arising from these ailments quickly vanish after Spinago enters the home; that the new tonic containing spinach, enriches and purifies the blood, rebuilds the body and drives away that tired and worn out feeling.

She and many others have learned that no matter how long these ailments have caused misery—no matter how many remedies have failed to bring relief—Spinago quickly and efficiently goes to the root of the troubles and transforms terrible misery and suffering into glorious and radiant health.

And all because this is a practical tonic made up of purely vegetable ingredients, the most important of which is concentrated spinach which is present in every bottle of Spinago in sufficient quantity to produce all the beneficial results of great quantities of fresh green spinach. And who does not know the value of Spinach as a food? what doctor does not prescribe it in practically every diet?

Spinago is sold at the Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St., Circleville headquarters, on an absolutely guaranteed basis. If one, two or six bottles won't produce results, your money is cheerfully refunded. So why not try Spinago on this plan? You can't lose.—Adv.

Wood Outlasts Steel

The average life of a wooden sailing vessel is about 30 years; that of a steam steel vessel, about 20 years.

POULTRY

DRIED MILK WILL HELP CURE CHICK

Part of Treatment for Flocks With Coccidiosis.

For chicks affected with coccidiosis, a diet rich in milk is one of the measures advocated for the cure and control of the disease by the poultry husbandry department of the Ohio State university. Not that simply feeding lots of milk is a sure or complete control measure. It must be employed as one of the features of a general treatment of which sanitation and prevention are the outstanding features.

In combating coccidiosis in a flock the poultry husbandry department recommends four steps, giving epsom salts at the rate of one pound to four gallons of water; confining the chicks to the brooder house or moving the house to clean soil so that there is no reinfestation from the soil; cleaning the brooder thoroughly and disinfecting it every three days, and placing the chicks on a diet which is rich in milk.

Quick relief from a diet of liquid milk is not likely because the birds will not consume enough of it. In using dry milk, best results are obtained when the mash is composed of 40 parts of dry milk. No other source of animal protein should be used in the mash.

The following mixture has been found to give satisfactory results when fed as soon as the disease appears and kept before the chicks as long as it is in evidence: dry skim milk, 40 pounds; wheat bran, 10 pounds; yellow corn meal, 30 pounds; ground rolled oats or barley, 20 pounds.

Selection of Breeding Stock Helps Turkeys

One of the most important steps towards successful turkey production depends upon the proper selection of the breeding stock. Weak poults, small, scrubby turkeys and unhatched eggs are often traced to carelessness in the selection of the breeding stock. Turkeys that are used as breeders must possess those physical characteristics, showing strength and vigor. These characteristics are manifested as a general rule by a deep and wide body, the back broad and the breast round and full. The head shows certain physical characteristics of strength, namely: the eyes should be fairly short, broad and deep and of good size, showing a clean, healthy appearance. The legs of the birds should be well apart, showing a strong, sturdy shank and straight toes. Considerable emphasis should be given in the selection of the male bird. This in itself should improve the stock from year to year. Early hatched toms, as a general rule, are sufficiently mature to make good breeders the first season. One should avoid using the late hatched male birds for breeding purposes.

Sufficient Range for Success With Turkeys

A range of one acre of sod is considered sufficient for 100 turkeys from the age of eight weeks to marketable age. This area should also be divided into four sections and then each section used for only one month. The secret of successful turkey raising rests largely in providing fresh ground and the hopper feeding of all feed. In the selection of range it should be one which has not been frequented by chickens and should not be situated where drainage from the poultry yards may result in infestation. It is, of course, desirable to have all the turkeys of the same age. There is no question but that turkeys can be successfully raised in confinement and that it does not pay to allow turkeys to range for their feed.

Hatch Chicks Early

Much has been said for or against early hatching of chicks. It is a question that every breeder and producer will need to answer according to his own circumstances. In making the decision he should take into consideration not only the immediate convenience, but also the future usefulness of the birds. It is a fact that early hatched chicks are more profitable winter layers, the same as fall freshening dairy cows are the most profitable milkers.

Skim Milk for Hens

On many farms skim milk is used with stock that will not pay as great a return for its use as when fed to poultry. Most records indicate that it is worth more when fed to poultry than to any other class of live stock. In fact, more poultry men are feeding different types of condensed milk, than all other classes of live stock. This indicates that poultry responds particularly well to milk feeding. The minerals in milk are also beneficial to the fowls.

Green Feed Source

The great increase in the sale of head lettuce in many cities gives some poultrymen a fine source of succulent green feed for their hens. The heads of lettuce often require quite a little trimming before they are placed on the counters. Sometimes bushels of the leaves can be obtained for the hens, and the grocers are glad to get them out of the way. It often pays a poultryman to do his trading with dealers who have such products for disposal.

Pie Making as Home Industry Is Passing

"The mining of meat in pies saveth the grinding of the teeth," wrote Bacon. "The devil speed him. No man's pie is freed from his ambitious finger," says Shakespeare in Henry VIII. As far back as the Fifteenth century the pie was used as a theme for comedies. "The Pie and the Tart," in France, and in later years "The Pie Dish" and the "Pie in the Oven," in England.

"The pie," wrote Harriet Beecher Stowe in "Oldtown," "is an English institution which, planted on American soil, forthwith ran rampant and broke forth into an incredible variety of genera and species."

The pie, as a breakfast dish, is disappearing from American tables, but remains in popular favor for luncheon and dinner. But the bakers of today are performing such feats with pastry and fruit that the home-made pie of traditional depth and circumference, covered, open-face or with lattice-work trimmings, is threatened with extinction. Should it be banished, to be succeeded by the less difficult tart or jelly-roll, there will be lost forever a means by which the cook may express her artistry in tracing patterns with a fork on crust. Pie-making and quilting were two arts of the pioneer American woman.

The "High Hat"

It had always been Sambo's ambition to own a fur coat, and after years of saving he was at last able to buy it. As one morning he was strutting down the street a friend approached him.

Frank had 150; but it is hard to beat George hunting mushrooms and Marion found quite a few that would be mushrooms in a few days and not being able to count them, his average was below par. All that is needed now is sunshine and a few warm days and there will be mushrooms served on many tables.

Thou and You

A reader asks "when and by whom was the plain language, thee and thou, changed to you when speaking to a single person?" We can only say that the change was brought about by public usage. If one were to adhere strictly to the laws of grammar, then one should still address a single person as thou instead of you, and some people do this yet, but the ordinary custom has become to drop the second person singular, even when only one person is addressed, and to use the second person plural. There is no law of any kind requiring this. It is simply the custom.—Exchange.

Guessing Games

THEY were a lot of fun when we were youngsters, those guessing games. Guess who this is! Guess the number of beans in the pot! Guess how long the pendulum will swing! Sometimes we came pretty close to the right answer. Sometimes we were a long way off. Whichever we were, we all had a good time, and the worst guesser got as much of the evening's refreshments as the best.

How far away those guessing games seem now! And how they have lost their appeal. Perhaps it's because we learned, as we grew older, that to know is better than to guess. Guess which is the best package on the grocer's shelf! Guess which bolt of cloth is pure wool! Guess which talking machine will give us most satisfaction! No, guessing for those things wasn't so much fun. We wanted to be certain. And that was one of the reasons we turned to advertising.

REAL TREAT- FALLS-SPIN- BRINGS HEALTH

10 Children Freed
From Terrible
Indigestion By New Tonic Containing Spinach.

Mrs. Jay Henry who has resided in Circleville for 22 years at 107 N. Franklin St., is the latest woman to praise Spinago, a new tonic containing Spinach being introduced to Circleville sufferers at The Mykranitz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St. When Mrs. Henry came to the store the other day for her third bottle, she made the following remarkable statement:

"Spinago has certainly given me relief from a very terrible case of stomach trouble which has affected me for years. During all those years I suffered terribly from gas and indigestion; these horrible pains would shoot through me after every meal; nothing digested and very bad bloating kept me in misery most of the time. I could not eat much of anything because of the fearful pains I always experienced and I didn't have any appetite whatever. My bowels became more and more irregular, and the constipation with which I had always been bothered, grew worse all the time. During the past year it got so bad that it was unbearable and many and many a day I was unable to even get my necessary work done."

MRS. JAY HENRY

"I doctored and took one medicine after another seeking relief, and twice during the past year I went to a Columbus hospital for treatments. But nothing did me any good until the lucky day when I started on Spinago. I have taken two bottles of this wonderful medicine and am happy to say that I am now free of these terrible agonies. No more bloating or indigestion; no more constipation or stomach trouble; no more gas and no more pains. I have a healthy appetite and can eat anything and enjoy it without fear of pain and misery."

"I can truthfully say that I have received more relief since I began taking Spinago than I have received for many months, and that it has done me more good than the treatments at the hospital. As a tonic and appetizer it is wonderful, and cannot be surpassed by any medicine. I heartily recommend this super medicine to any one seeking relief from any troubles."

Mrs. Henry, the mother of ten children is just one among the many Circleville residents who have found that stomach, liver, bowel and kidney complaints simply can't stand up against the action of Spinago; that indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness and pains arising from these ailments quickly vanish after Spinago enters the home; that the new tonic containing spinach, enriches and purifies the blood, rebuilds the body and drives away that tired and worn out feeling."

"She and many others have learned that no matter how long these ailments have caused misery—no matter how many remedies have failed to bring relief—Spinago quickly and efficiently goes to the root of the troubles and transforms terrible misery and suffering into glorious and radiant health."

And all because this is a practical tonic made up of purely vegetable ingredients, the most important of which is concentrated spinach which is present in every bottle of Spinago in sufficient quantity to produce all the beneficial results of great quantities of fresh green spinach. And who doesn't know the value of Spinago as a food? what doctor does not prescribe it in practically every diet?

Spinago is sold at the Mykranitz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St., Circleville headquarters, on an absolutely guaranteed basis. If one, two or six bottles won't produce results your money is cheerfully refunded. So why not try Spinago on this plan? You can't lose—adv.

DOULTY POULTRY

DRIED MILK WILL HELP CURE CHICK

Part of Treatment for Flocks
With Coccidiosis.

For chicks affected with coccidiosis, a diet rich in milk is one of the measures advocated for the cure and control of the disease, by the poultry husbandry department of the Ohio State university. Not that simply feeding lots of milk is a sure or complete control measure. It must be employed as one of the features of a general treatment of which sanitation and prevention are the outstanding practices.

In combating coccidiosis in a flock the poultry husbandry department recommends four steps, giving equal parts to the rate of one pound to four gallons of water; confining the chicks to the brooder house or moving the house to clean soil so that there is no reinfestation from the soil; cleaning the brooder thoroughly and disinfecting it every three days, and placing the chicks on a diet which is rich in milk.

Quick relief from a diet of liquid milk is not likely because the birds will not consume enough of it. In using dry milk, best results are obtained when the mash is composed of 40 parts of dry milk. No other source of animal protein should be used in the mash.

The following mixture has been found to give satisfactory results when fed as soon as the disease appears and kept before the chicks as long as it is in evidence: dry skim milk, 40 pounds; wheat bran, 10 pounds; yellow corn meal, 30 pounds; ground rolled oats or barley, 20 pounds.

Selection of Breeding
Stock Helps Turkeys

One of the most important steps towards successful turkey production depends upon the proper selection of the breeding stock. Weak poults, small scrubby turkeys and unhatched eggs are often traced to carelessness in the selection of the breeding stock. Turkeys that are used as breeders must possess those physical characteristics, showing strength and vigor. These characteristics are manifested as a general rule by a deep and wide body, the back broad and the breast round and full. The head shows certain physical characteristics of strength, namely: the eyes should be fairly short, broad and deep and of good size, showing a clean, healthy appearance. The legs of the birds should be well apart, showing a strong, sturdy shank and straight toes. Considerable emphasis should be given in the selection of the male bird. This in itself should improve the stock from year to year. Early hatched toms, as a general rule, are sufficiently matured to make good breeders the first season. One should avoid using the late hatched male birds for breeding purposes.

Sufficient Range for Success With Turkeys

A range of one acre of sod is considered sufficient for 100 turkeys from the age of eight weeks to marketable age. This acre should also be divided into four sections and then each section used for only one month. The secret of successful turkey raising rests largely in providing fresh ground and the proper feeding of the birds. In the selection of range it should be one which has not been frequented by chickens and should not be situated where drainage from the poultry yards may result in infestation. It is, of course, desirable to have all the turkeys of the same age. There is no question but that turkeys can be successfully raised in confinement and that it does not pay to allow turkeys to range for their feed.

Hatch Chicks Early

Much has been said for or against early hatching of chicks. It is a question that every breeder and producer will need to answer according to his own circumstances. In making the decision he should take into consideration not only the immediate convenience, but also the future usefulness of the birds. It is a fact that early hatched chicks are more profitable winter layers, the same as fall freshening dairy cows are the most profitable milkers.

The great increase in the sale of head lettuce in many cities gives some poultrymen a fine source of succulent green feed for their hens. The heads of lettuce often require quite a little trimming before they are placed on the counters. It often pays a poultryman to do his trading with dealers who have such products for disposal.

PERCHERON MARE BOUGHT BY ADKINS

Continued activity and rising prices in the purebred draft horse market this year indicate that farmer interest in good horses is greater than for some time. Purchases of the big horses in Pickaway-co include the recent transfer of a Percheron mare secured by George H. Adkins of Circleville from George W. Lindsay of New Holland.

The mare is a purebred Percheron, the breed to which two-thirds of the registered draft horses of the United States belong. She is registered with the Percheron society of America as Avenue 189659. This Fortune Teller

"Of course, I don't believe in fortune tellers and all that bunk, but I went to him just out of curiosity. Betty swears by him. She says he told her things about herself that even she didn't know. So I went to him just out of curiosity. Well, my dear, he said I had the most extraordinary crystal. He'd never seen a crystal as extraordinary as mine. He said my aura just glinted with fame and fortune. He said that would make a wonderful writer. Yes, he said he saw pens in my crystal. And I'm going to travel. Maybe not this year but next year or the year after. He didn't say exactly where I was going but he distinctly saw a train or a boat in my crystal. And sister to this, dear. He said I was going to marry a tallish, sort of dark man with grayish-blue eyes. Isn't that a perfect description of Fred? He isn't exactly tall, but he is more dark than light and his eyes are more gray than blue. For sure he means Fred. He said we'd be married next summer or the winter after that. It's really quite remarkable the things he tells you. Of course I don't really believe in fortune tellers and I know it's all foolish but he's awfully good and you must go to him—just out of curiosity." Kansas City Times.

Farther Still

An Irishman and a Scot found themselves seated side-by-side at a certain Christmas club dinner and each tried to impress the other with the distance he had traveled.

After much discussion the Irish man admitted that he had sailed the Seven seas amongst other trilles and that he had been to the end of the world.

"An' what did ye see there?" asked the Scot.

"Sure, and there was a great big wall reaching to the sky, me boy," replied the other.

"Ah, well," said the Scot, "it's a pretty pe-dink look over yer wall for I was behind it fishin' ye ken."

When Memory Falters

How often it is sometimes to collect things into memory! How difficult it is to get it to work well when years have dulled its use or rusted its hinges. Old folk find they cannot recall names as they did formerly. They forget things in fashion almost ludicrous, when compared with that of other days. The little cells of memory do not now fly open, readily as they once did. Human mechanism is not made to last forever as it is made now. No matter how well it is trained it will no more go on always, than will any other machinery. Even steel will not preserve its elasticity forever. Big bridges have to be replaced at times, generally by piecemeal to save expense. Some conceal it well, some fight against it at a period of life, for that way apoplexy lies.

Too Much Sleep Possible

Dr. Russell raises the point that just as most people get too much there is a probability that many indulge in too much sleep. But this does not apply to children.

TEACHERS' INFLUENCE

Who can estimate the influence, helpfulness, inspiration and accomplishment through others, that have been exerted by Miss Clara Littleton who retired from the local schools several years ago, in her years of teaching? Group after group of blessed children, keen for knowledge, trusting, impressionable, came under her ministrations. In that fertile soil she planted seeds of knowledge, watered by human understanding and cultivated by books and charts. Who can count the resolves and mental dawnings this kind and faithful woman fostered in youthful minds and hearts? Many of Miss Littleton's former pupils are engaged in business—some in high places—some in lowly, perhaps, but doubtless there is a warm corner in the heart of every former pupil for this kindly, patient, understanding school-ma'am. She has not lived her life in vain.

The appreciation of this paper and that of the community goes out to this tried and true monitor of the young idea, and to all teachers who toil day after day in school rooms of this country in aid of our greatest crop—the children!

Differ Over Beginning of First Civilization

There are two independent theories as to the origin of civilization. The older theory is that the human mind is such that, given an opportunity, it will produce a civilization. But this does not account for the similarity of customs found in all civilizations, and so there exists the alternate theory that civilization started from a definite center, from which it spread. "In his book, 'The Beginning: The Origin of Civilization,' Elliot Smith, the chief exponent of the latter theory, sets this center in upper Egypt, on the banks of the Nile, and the time about 4000 B. C. The determining cause he believes to have been an abundant crop of wild barley, which caused man to give up his roaming life for a favorite climate and an assured food supply. Lean periods led to the invention of methods of storage, and this taught the greatest thing ever discovered by man—the function of the seed in plant growth. Having reached this stage, the further growth of civilization is not difficult to visualize.

Truly Hospitable

A former college president was invited to lunch at the home of one of his alumni. The five-year old daughter of the house was delighted to show the distinguished guest up to wash his hands. Opening the door of the bathroom, which was duly fitted out with the best of modern conveniences, she said: "Just make yourself at home and—'with a royal gesture—'you may use any of the towels."—In dianapolis News.

MEXICO AGAIN SCENE OF WAR

States of Sonora, Coahuila, Nueva Leon, Vera Cruz Center of Revolt.

Washington.—Many of the 23 states of Mexico have been mentioned in stories of the recent revolutionary outbreak, but nearly all news stories agree in the prominence of four: Sonora, Coahuila, Nueva Leon and Vera Cruz. A bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society gives the geographic and economic background of these four states and of three key cities, Monterrey, Vera Cruz and Tampico.

"Sonora in northwestern Mexico, which is the fountainhead of the new revolution, has been in common with our own Southwest," says the bulletin. "To many Mexicans in these states, the Sonorans are the 'Yankes of Mexico.' This is because of their alertness and activity and because contacts with Americans have shaped many of the Sonoran customs.

Sonora Progressive. "Nearly every well-to-do family among the merchants and ranchers has sent its sons and daughters to school in the United States, and it is not difficult to find natives who speak English fluently. There has been a stream of American goods into the state, and in Sonoran homes one is constantly seeing American phonographs, sewing machines, baby carriages and brass beds.

"The state is primarily a mining and cattle country. Rich silver, gold and copper mines have been operated since the coming of the Spaniards; and there are treasures, some of the rarer minerals, never yet worked commercially. In the southern end of the state lies the valley of the Yaqui river, home of the Yaqui Indians. All Mexican governments have found these Indians an unruly lot, and sanguinary wars have been fought with them.

"Sonora, in several gateway towns along the American border. At Nogales an important railway enters Mexico from the United States, striking south to the Gulf of California and thence along the Mexican west coast for 500 miles or more. Turning inland, it reaches Mexico City.

"Adjoining Sonora, on the east lies Chihuahua, Mexico's biggest state, which, according to the early reports, remained faithful to the federal cause. Immediately east of Chihuahua is Coahuila, another center of revolutionary activity. Coahuila is a semi-arid region crossed by mountains and with some desert patches; but with considerable areas upon which wheat can be grown and cattle pastured. It was to this state that Texas was linked when, a century ago, that huge commonwealth was a part of Mexico. Saltillo, in the southern part of Coahuila, was a common capital, and to this remote town, across deserts and barren mountains, the early American colonists of Texas had to go to present their petitions.

Railway "Nerve Center." Monterrey, capital of Nueva Leon, lies about 130 miles south of Laredo, Texas, and 500 miles north of Mexico City. It has a population of more than 100,000, and is one of the most progressive and modern cities in Mexico. Its chief importance from a military point of view lies in the fact that it is the railway "nerve center" of the republic. Through Monterrey passes the main railway line between Mexico City and the eastern United States, crossing the United States-Mexican border at Laredo, Texas. Two other railways from the border converge at Monterrey; one from Eagle Pass, Texas, and on from Brownsville, Texas, near the mouth of the Rio Grande.

"The spokes of the city's wheel of railways also include a line extending due west to Torreon and the Mexican lake district, the main line south to a line southward to the Gulf of Mexico. Without this rail center, it would be almost impossible for the Mexican government to maintain railway connection with the United States.

"The state of Vera Cruz is a narrow band of territory covering the lower half of the eastern Gulf coast of Mexico. About midway of its coast line is the city of Vera Cruz, which has been the water gateway of Mexico from the days of Cortez. From Vera Cruz a railway extends inland, climbing the mountain bulwark that rims the central plateau on which the City of Mexico lies.

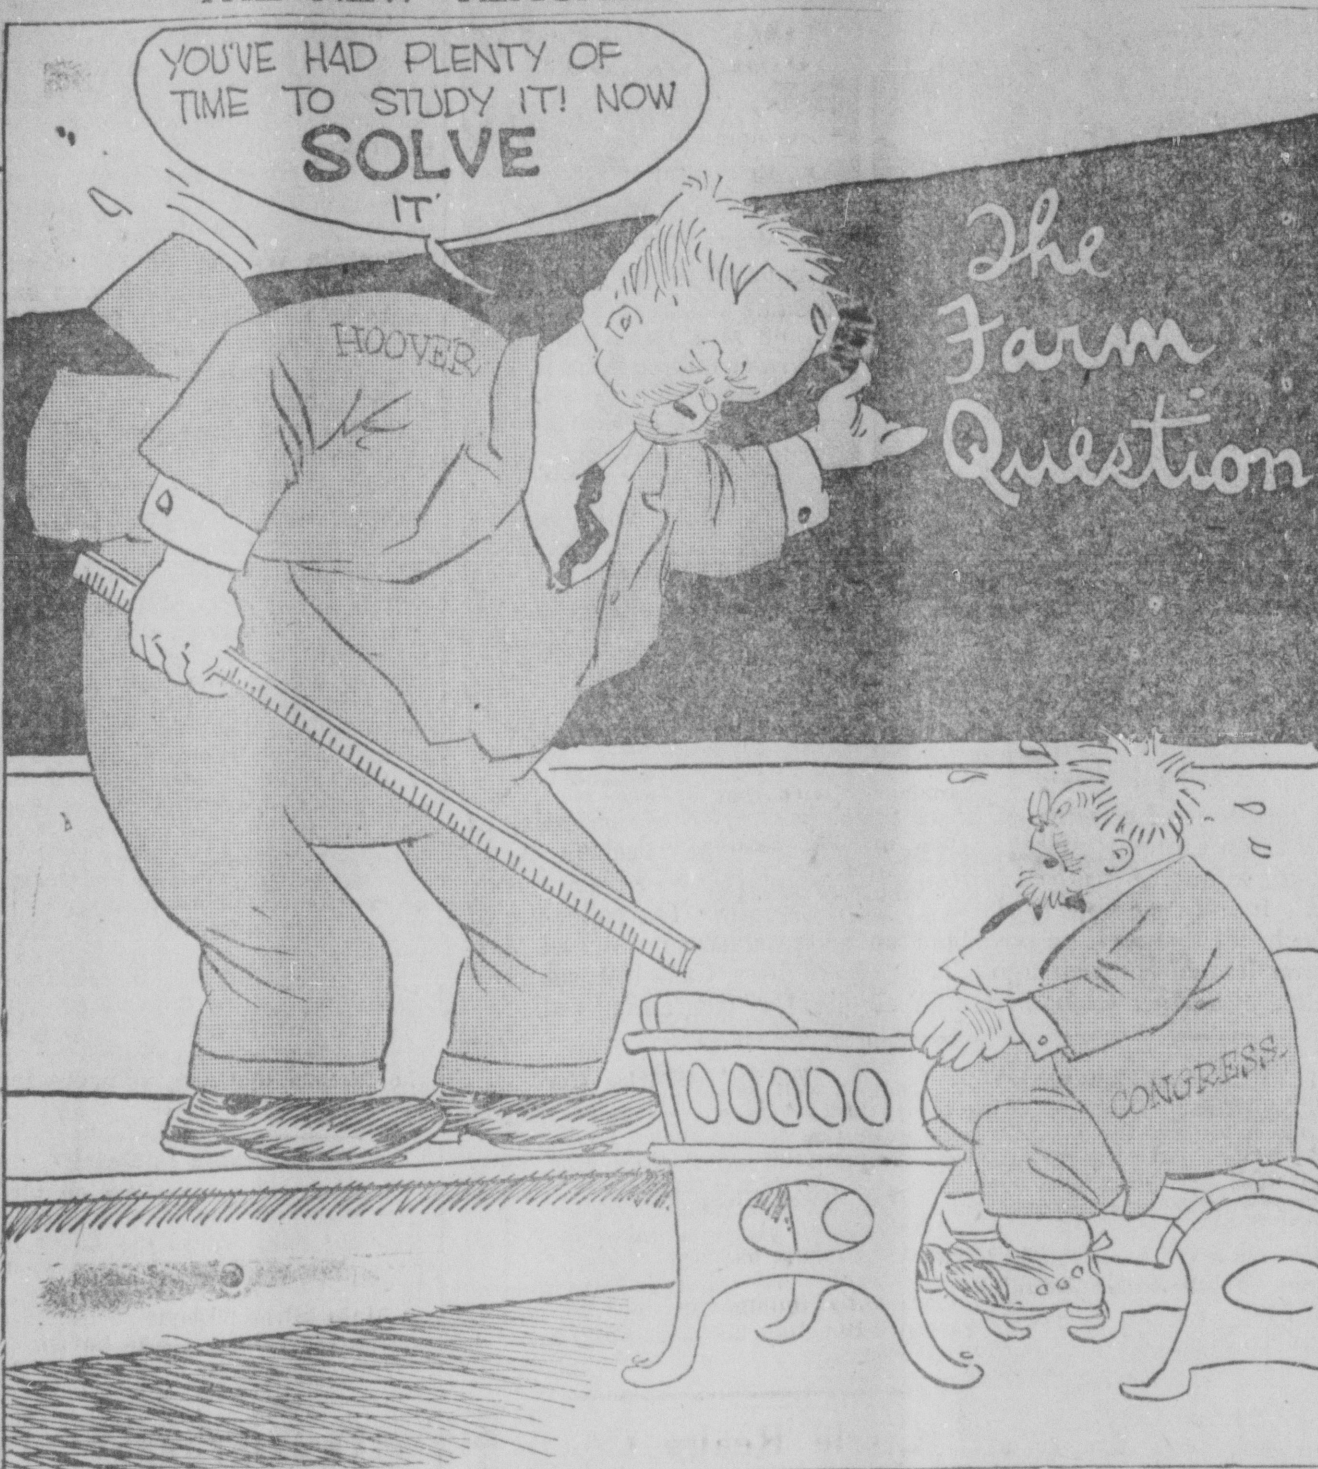

Growing in Importance. "Vera Cruz is for the most part a low-lying country given over to banana, sugar and rice plantations and the growth of other tropical plants. There is no north and south railway throughout the state, only relatively short stretches of track up and down the coast from the port. This situation emphasizes the importance in the affairs of the state of the city of Vera Cruz, the sea gateway, and the city of Orizaba, 60 miles inland on the road to Mexico City. The holding of these two cities will mean control of the state.

"In recent years the port of Vera Cruz has slipped somewhat from its former dominant position among Mexican ports, while Tampico, 250 miles to the north, has grown rapidly in importance. This advance of Tampico at the expense of Vera Cruz has been due chiefly to two factors: the development of petroleum supplies in the vicinity of Tampico, and labor and employment restrictions in Vera Cruz that have discouraged importers and exporters. Since a railway has been in existence from Tampico on the plateau of San Luis Potosi, an ever increasing stream of goods from overseas has flowed to Mexico City.

THE NEW TEACHER SEEMS IN EARNEST

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife Lilith that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina's daughter by Irene was a dashing brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill, called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton to whom he was engaged. Lilith alone in New York is informed she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy, family friend, see her through this tragic experience and prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant dies, they return home with Lilith guarding the secret of her shame. Tina is preparing to marry a handsome local lad of means. Irene is torn between happiness for Tina and fear of Lilith's shame becoming known. She becomes nervous and jumpy at each sound of the doorbell or phone. Lilith tells Tina she would give anything to go to Paris.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LXV.

THE invalid slowly grew better. The rest from every exertion, the nourishing food, the careful attention given her began to show effects in returning strength. Presently she was permitted to join the family for an hour or so downstairs of an evening, when she lay in a steamer chair on the porch or rocked softly in the midst of the chatter that went on about her. Talk of church problems, of neighborhood news, or plans for the wedding left her equally unresponsive, so far as outward manifestation went. If any one spoke directly to her she would answer in a tone that indicated she would prefer to be spared the exertion of speech.

So in the main she was spared. It was enough for Guinn to have her near him, where he could see her, more beautiful than ever, in her pallor and repose. She wore white frocks almost exclusively, which, with her blue eyes and golden hair, gave her an angelic look. Irene would often gaze at her unobserved and ask herself if she could have dreamed the events of the weeks in New York.

Neighbors dropped in again, now that she was better, and welcomed her with all the old admiring enthusiasm. Irene used to ask herself: "What if they knew?" Abby Whitaker, after having been balked in innumerable calls, with others of the church, at last found Irene and Lilith on the porch one evening and came in.

"You stayed a long time in New York, didn't you?" "Yes, a good while," said Irene, tingles of fear prickling up and down her spine, chills of nervousness over her skin. She had never trusted Abby, in anything. "What were you doing all that time?" "I was there and tried to find you."

Irene shivered. "We had a little apartment, so as to be quiet, on Lilith's account. She wasn't well, you know."

"But didn't you go out at all, see any of your old friends?" Abby probed. Lilith spoke up quietly from the swing. "I had been going out too much and was a nervous wreck, so mother just stayed and took care of me."

Irene felt cold with fear, though the evening was warm. Frozen fingers of fear traced her spine, as she remembered what a "spidery person" Abby was, and how she hated her because Guinn had married her. But Abby didn't know that Guinn had never really married her. Would she feel sorry for her if she did?

She worried every day, every hour, lest the truth should spring out and smite Guinn. She was not like her old self. Her gaiety was less spontaneous, her sense of humor not the unfailing support it had always been.

"How come you ain't as lively as you used to be?" Miss Mattie demanded one day.

"Middle age, I reckon," said she,

And after all, what was there to fear? No one knew except Will Lundy. And now Lilith was getting well again, and more beautiful than ever. She would find a way out for herself. She still held her pride before her like a shield. But what would have become of a Lilith shamed and disgraced? "I did right, I did right," she told herself fiercely.

Sheba was back at her work and singing.

"Got a little baby in the new graveyard."

"Don't made with hand, And don't made with hand, And don't made with hand."

Got a little baby in the new graveyard, And I don't made with hand.

One day she asked Will Lundy: "Will, what shall I do if Lilith wants to marry? She won't want to tell."

"Irene, you ought to be in an institution for the feeble-minded. Lilith will have to decide that for herself. It isn't your job."

He shook her shoulder. "Lilith will face life for herself. She will be armed against disaster next time. She'll probably marry some rich man, in New York or somewhere else, and be a glittering success. And she'll be so smart to give your favored conscience a chance to spoil her game."

She sighed heavily. "This has changed my whole life. It has made a liar and a coward out of me. Every time the doorbell rings, or the phone, I shiver to think the truth is coming to crush Guinn. Every letter in a strange hand scares me. The postman looks like a policeman to me."

He laughed a big hearty man's laugh. "The doorbell and the telephone and the postman will soon be working overtime, bringing gifts for Tina's wedding. Think of that."

"That's the most comforting thought in the universe for me," she murmured. "I can stand anything myself, since my little Tina is going to be perfectly happy."

"Yes, that thought boosts me a lot, too," he said. "I sometimes think maybe Miss Mattie guesses at the truth. She's got a curiosity like a gimlet that can bore through any situation."

Guinn was away holding a meeting, and as usual in his absence, Irene opened his letters, had the secretary answer such as didn't need his personal attention, and forwarded the others to him. A revival mustn't be interrupted by unnecessary demands on the preacher's attention. Irene sat at the porch one morning after the postman had left the sheaf of letters with her, and opened them. One was in a queer, strained hand, slanted backward as if in an attempt to disguise the penmanship. "My dear Pastor:

"I hate to see you fooled and lied to. You ought to know the truth. Why don't you find out the real facts about that trip your wife took to New York?"

"A member of your flock." Irene felt a sudden swirl of terror that nauseated her. From what direction was the blow coming?

With shaking fingers she dressed to go out. She hurried to the hospital to see Will Lundy, where he received her in his private office. Without a word, she held out the letter to him.

He read it, frowning. "Some jealous woman," he muttered. "Oh, Will, I'd rather die than have this thing known to hurt Guinn, to break his heart," she cried wildly.

"Leave this letter with me and I'll do some sleuthing. I'll take care of you, Irene. Don't worry." "Suspense is the cruellest thing in the world," she whispered. "No, sometimes certainty is worse."

LETTERS TO EDITOR

SHAME ON HIGH SCHOOL Editor Circleville Herald.

Dear Sir: The writer, as well as many other old Circleville high men were indeed surprised to read in your paper that the local school had withdrawn from the South Central Athletic Association.

The town hates a quitter but loves a fighter and it is disgraceful that a town the size of Circleville has men at the head of their schools who are small enough to come out and say "you big boys from Wilmington, Hillsboro, Frankfort, Washington C. H. and Greenfield are too big and rough for us and you have won from us for the last time. We will play some one else for awhile."

Why is it that these towns, none of them larger than Circleville, always have better football and basketball teams than our town? Are their boys bigger and better? By all means NO. There is only one answer—the schools in these other towns smaller than Circleville have better athletic instructors. If those in authority would hire competent coaches Circleville would not finish in the cellar year after year and now stand before the world as a quitter. It is high time that the citizens of Circleville took some notice of these things. A losing team all the time gets to be a joke and Circleville has the material now and always has had but some one is needed to develop this material unless the local fairs are willing that our team play Commercial Point, Darbyville, Derby, Kingston and Stoutsville, which more than likely will constitute the schedule this coming season. Ashville is too large a town for us to play now. They won from us last year so we had better not try them again.

For shame, Old Everts High. Signed,

A Former Student.

Light Harmful to Medicine

Light which is so helpful to sick persons does not do their medicines any good. In fact so many of these deteriorate upon exposure to light that druggists have authorized a special study to discover containers which will protect their medicines and chemicals from the harmful light. In some cases light rays seem to preserve the medical virtues of a preparation, but in others they are definitely harmful. The changes which patients notice in the colors of medicines is usually indicative of change in the medical properties. The green color of some iron preparations changes to an unpleasant brown. Bright yellow ointments turn brown or green. Tinctures and fluid extracts made from vegetable drugs turn a dark color and deposit sediments. Serums and other biological products lose their ability to cure or prevent disease.

May Succeed Herrick

Senator Walter Edge, of New Jersey, now seems most likely successor to Paris post left vacant by the death of Myron T. Herrick, late Ambassador to France. Simultaneous with this news comes the announcement that if Edge should accept, former Governor Edward G. Stokes will probably be put forward by the Republican organization as their candidate to succeed the Senator.

Bees Seldom Inactive

Honey bees do not go into a true state of hibernation during the winter but remain active within the hive, although they do not venture abroad, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. To keep warm, the colony practices a marvelous system of insulation and exercise. A large number of bees form a more or less spherical cluster, those on the outside having their bodies packed close to each other, parallel and with their heads up. This formation constitutes an insulation shell. Inside, the other bees keep up a constant twisting and squirming motion to create heat. This is so effective that the temperature inside the shell seldom drops below 57 degrees Fahrenheit.

THEATRES

"THE KID SISTER"

Marguerite De La Motte, Ann Christy and Malcolm MacGregor are starred at the Grand theater in "The Kid Sister," a heart-throbbing, pulsating drama and romance of love and life of a "Follies Girl." A Fox News and Educational comedy are also on the bill.

"THE ETERNAL WOMAN"

Olive Borden returns to the Cliftona Theater, Monday, in Columbia's latest offering, "The Eternal Woman." She is featured with Ralph Graves who plays an American business man, while she portrays a fiery little Argentine girl.

Here is a picture that is 100% pure entertainment. The South American republic, Argentina, is the scene of some exciting action, followed by an exciting shipwreck and a final adjustment of the whole affair in New York. It is a domestic complication with a tender love development between two strongly contrasting people.

Especially excellent are the location scenes and the settings, which are picturesque and convincing. Throughout there is a spirit of reality and pure entertainment value.

Others featured in the cast with Olive Borden and Ralph Graves are Ruth Clifford, John Miljan, Nena Quartaro and Josef Swickard.

Old Cities in Tiers

The Inca museum at Lima, Peru, has recently come into possession of 300 mummies of aboriginal Peruvians brought back by an expedition to the Pisco region. From these and other discoveries it would seem that there was an advanced civilization in that part of the country long before the time of Christ. Cities of different periods were found, one built over the other, the earlier ones having been buried. The expeditions also returned with great wealth of embroidered tapestries, beautifully decorated pottery, some in the shapes of animals and serpents. One of a llama design showed five toes on the forefoot instead of the present split hoof. Llama skeletons showing the same characteristics were also discovered.

MEXICO AGAIN
SCENE OF WAR

States of Sonora, Coahuila, Nueva Leon, Vera Cruz Center of Revolt.

Washington.—Many of the 25 states of Mexico have been mentioned in stories of the recent revolutionary outbreak, but nearly all news stories agree in the prominence of four: Sonora, Coahuila, Nueva Leon and Vera Cruz. A bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society gives the geographic and economic background of these four states and of three key cities: Monterrey, Vera Cruz and Tampico.

"Sonora in northwestern Mexico, which is the fountainhead of the new revolution, has points in common with our own Southwest," says the bulletin. "To many Mexicans in these states, the Sonorans are the 'Yankees of Mexico.' This is because of their alertness and activity, and because contacts with Americans have shaped many of the Sonoran customs.

Sonora Progressive. "Nearly every well-to-do family among the merchants and ranchers has sent its sons and daughters to school in the United States, and it is not difficult to find natives who speak English fluently. There has been a stream of American goods into the state, and in Sonoran homes one is constantly seeing American photographs, sewing machines, baby carriages and brass beds.

"The state is primarily a mining and cattle country. Rich silver, gold and copper mines have been operated since the coming of the Spaniards; and there are treasures, some of the rarer minerals, never yet worked commercially. In the southern end of the state lies the valley of the Yaqui river, home of the Yaqui Indians. All Mexican governments have found these Indians an unruly lot, and sanguinary wars have been fought with them.

"Sonora has several gateway towns along the American border. At Nogales an important railway enters Mexico from the United States, striking south to the Gulf of California and thence along the Mexican west coast for 500 miles or more. Turning inland, it reaches Mexico City.

"Adjoining Sonora, on the east lies Chihuahua, Mexico's biggest state, which, according to the early reports, remained faithful to the federal cause. Immediately east of Chihuahua is Coahuila, another center of revolutionary activity. Coahuila is a semi-arid region crossed by mountains and with some desert patches; but with considerable areas upon which wheat can be grown and cattle pastured. It was to this state that Texas was linked when, a century ago, that huge commonwealth was a part of Mexico. Saltillo, in the southern part of Coahuila, was a common capital, and to this remote town, across deserts and barren mountains, the early American colonists of Texas had to go to present their petitions.

Railway "Nerve Center." Monterrey, capital of Nueva Leon, lies about 130 miles south of Laredo, Texas, and 500 miles north of Mexico City. It has a population of more than 100,000, and is one of the most progressive and modern cities in Mexico. Its chief importance from a military point of view lies in the fact that it is the railway "nerve center" of the republic. Through Monterrey passes the main railway line between Mexico City and the eastern United States, crossing the United States-Mexican border at Laredo, Texas. Two other railways from the border converge at Monterrey: one from Eagle Pass, Texas, and one from Brownsville, Texas, near the mouth of the Rio Grande.

"The spokes of the city's wheel of railways also include a line extending due west to Torreon and the Mexican lake district, the main line south to a line southward to the west of Tampico. Without this rail center, it would be almost impossible for the Mexican government to maintain railway connection with the United States.

"The state of Vera Cruz is a narrow band of territory covering the lower half of the eastern Gulf coast of Mexico. About midway of its coast line is the city of Vera Cruz, which has been the water gateway of Mexico from the days of Cortez. From Vera Cruz a railway extends inland, climbing the mountain flank that runs the central plateau on which the City of Mexico lies.

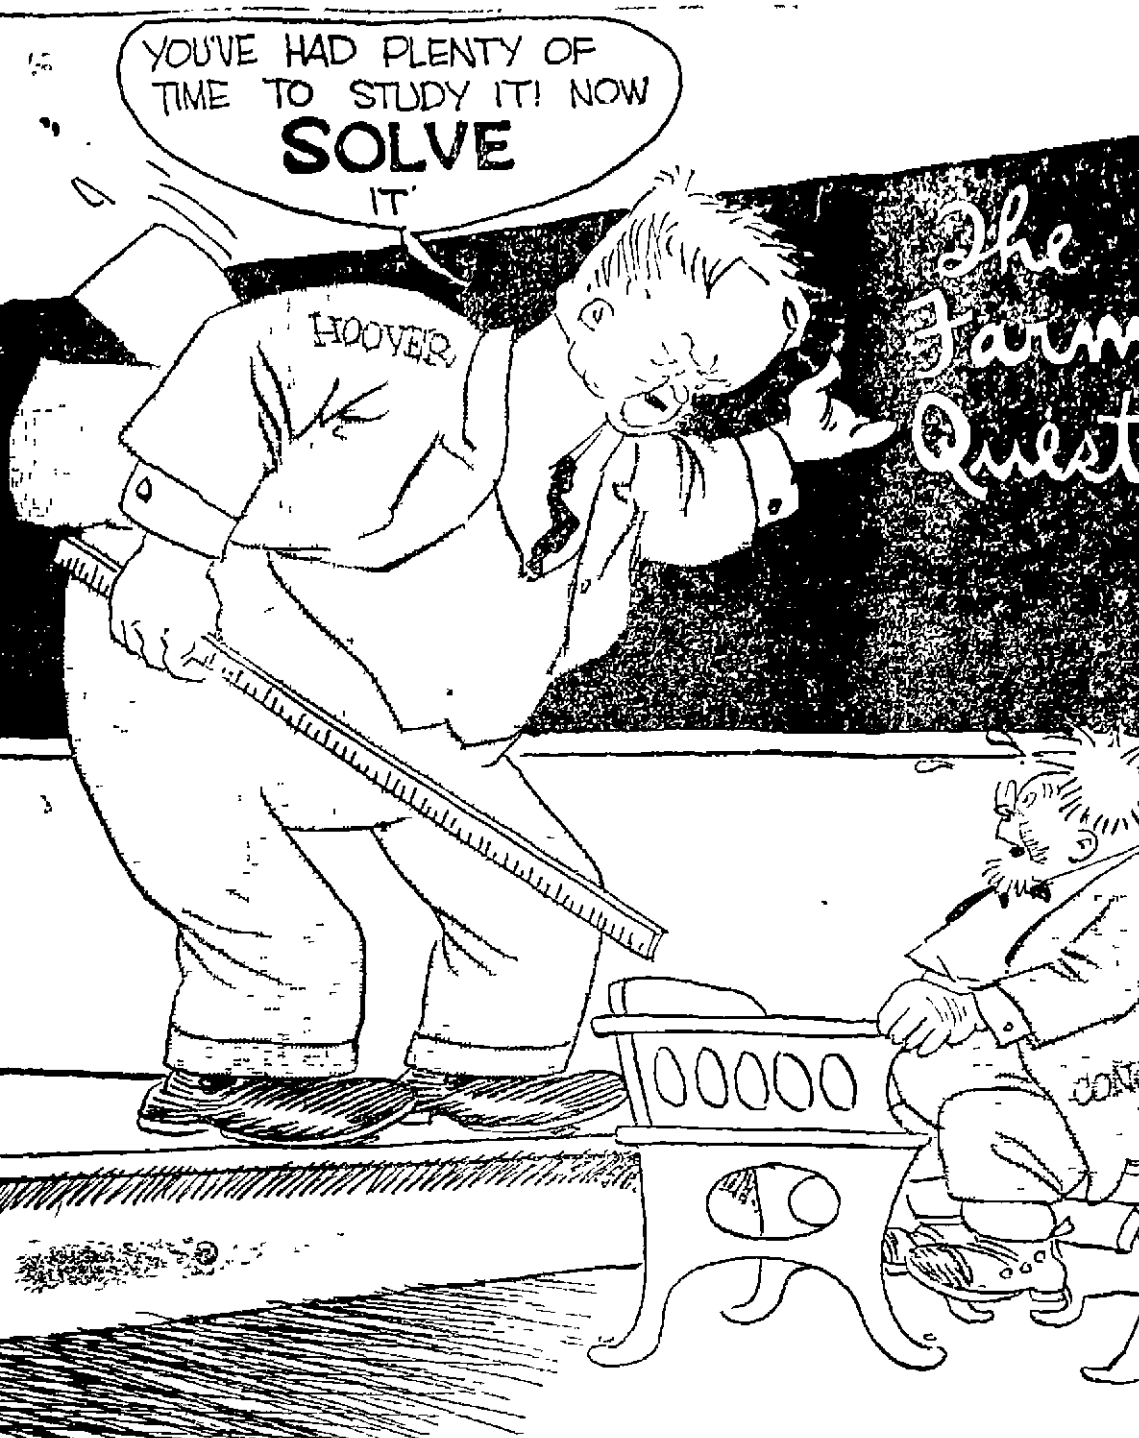

Growing in Importance. "Vera Cruz is for the most part a low-lying country given over to banana, sugar and rice plantations and the raising of other tropical products. There is no north and south railway, and the state, only relatively a few miles from the port. Its situation emphasizes the importance in the affairs of the state of the City of Mexico, the seat of the federal government, and the city of Vera Cruz, the gateway to the Gulf of Mexico.

"The state of Coahuila is a large, fertile country, given over to the raising of cattle and the growing of wheat and corn. It is one of the most progressive and modern states in Mexico. Its chief importance from a military point of view lies in the fact that it is the railway "nerve center" of the republic. Through Monterrey passes the main railway line between Mexico City and the eastern United States, crossing the United States-Mexican border at Laredo, Texas. Two other railways from the border converge at Monterrey: one from Eagle Pass, Texas, and one from Brownsville, Texas, near the mouth of the Rio Grande.

"The state of Sonora is a large, fertile country, given over to the raising of cattle and the growing of wheat and corn. It is one of the most progressive and modern states in Mexico. Its chief importance from a military point of view lies in the fact that it is the railway "nerve center" of the republic. Through Monterrey passes the main railway line between Mexico City and the eastern United States, crossing the United States-Mexican border at Laredo, Texas. THE NEW TEACHER SEEMS IN EARNEST

Impatient Griselda
by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife Lilith that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina his daughter by Irene a dazzling brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy, Bill, called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton to whom he was engaged. Lilith alone in New York is informed she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy, family friend, see her through this tragic experience and prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant dies they return home with Lilith guarding the secret of her shame. Tina is preparing to marry a handsome local lad of means. Irene is torn between happiness for Tina and fear of Lilith's shame becoming known. She becomes nervous and jumpy at each sound of the doorbell or phone. Lilith tells Tina she would give anything to go to Paris.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LXV. THE invalid slowly grew better. The rest from every exertion, the nourishing food, the careful attention given her began to show effects in returning strength. Presently she was permitted to join the family for an hour or so downstairs at an evening, when she lay in a steamer chair on the porch or rocked softly in the porch swing, silent in the midst of the chatter that went on about her. Talk of church problems, of neighborhood news, or plans for the wedding left her equally unresponsive, so far as outward manifestation went. If any one spoke directly to her she would answer in a tone that indicated she would prefer to be spared the exertion of speech.

So in the main she was spared. It was enough for Guinn to have her near him, where he could see her, more beautiful than ever, in her pallor and repose. She wore white frocks almost exclusively, with her blue eyes and golden hair, gave her an angelic look. Irene would often gaze at her unobserved and ask herself if she could have dreamed the events of the weeks in New York.

Neighbors dropped in again, now that she was better, and welcomed her with all the old admiration and enthusiasm. Irene used to ask herself, "What if they knew?" Abby Whitaker, after having barked in innumerable calls, with others of the church, at last found Irene and Lilith on the porch one evening and came in.

"You stayed a long time in New York, didn't you?" said Irene, tinkles of fear chasing up and down her spine, prickles of nervousness over her skin. She had never trusted Abby in anything. "What were you doing all that time? I was there and tried to find you."

Irene shivered. "We had a little apartment, so as to be quiet, on Lilith's account. She wasn't well, you know." "But didn't you go out at all, see any of your old friends?" Abby asked.

"Lilith spoke up quite from the swing. It had been a long time since she had been out so much, and was a nervous wreck. Mother just stayed and took care of me." Irene felt cold with fear, though the evening was warm. Her fingers of fear traced her spine, as she remembered with a shudder, "person" Abby was, and how she hated her cause Guinn's daughter. But Abby didn't know that Guinn had never really married her. Would she feel sorry for her if she did?

She worried every day, every hour, lest the truth should spring out and smite Guinn. She was not like her old self. Her guile was less spontaneous, her sense of humor not the unfailing support it had always been. "How come you ain't as lively as you used to be?" Miss Matthe demanded one day. "Middle age, I reckon," said she,

LETTERS TO EDITOR
SHAME ON HIGH SCHOOL
Editor Circleville Herald.
Dear Sir:

The writer, as well as many other old Circleville high men were indeed surprised to read in your paper that the local school had withdrawn from the South Central Athletic Association.

The world hates a quitter but loves a fighter and it is disgraceful that a town the size of Circleville has men at the head of their schools who are small enough to come out and say "you big boys from Wilmington, Hillsboro, Frankfort, Washington C. H. and Greenfield are too big and rough for us and you have won from us for the last time. We will play some one else for awhile."

Why is it that these towns, none of them larger than Circleville, always have better football and basketball teams than our town? Are their boys bigger and better? By all means NO. There is only one answer—the schools in these other towns smaller than Circleville have better athletic instructors. If those in authority would hire competent coaches Circleville would not finish in the cellar year after year and now stand before the world as a quitter. It is high time that the citizens of Circleville took some notice of these things. A losing team all the time gets to be a joke and Circleville has the material now and always has had but some one is needed to develop this material unless the local fairs are willing that our team play Commercial Point, Darbyville, Derby, Kingston and Stoutsville, which more than likely will constitute the schedule this coming season. Asheville is too large a town for us to play now. They won from us last year so we had better not try them again.

May Succeed Herrick

Senator Walter Edge, of New Jersey, now seems most likely successor to Paris post left vacant by the death of Myron T. Herrick, late Ambassador to France. Simultaneous with this news comes the announcement that if Edge should accept, former Governor Edward G. Stokes will probably be put forward by the Republican organization as their candidate to succeed the Senator.

Bees Seldom Inactive

Honey bees do not go into a true state of hibernation during the winter but remain active within the hive, although they do not venture abroad, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. To keep warm, the colony practices a marvelous system of insulation and exercise. A large number of bees form a more or less spherical cluster, those on the outside having their bodies packed close to each other, par, aliel and with their heads up. This formation constitutes an insulation shield. Inside, the other bees keep up a constant twisting and squirming motion to create heat. This is so effective that the temperature inside the shell seldom drops below 57 degrees Fahrenheit.

Old Cities in Tiers

The Inca museum at Lima, Peru, has recently come into possession of 300 mummies of aboriginal Peruvians brought back by an expedition to the Pisco region. From these and other discoveries it would seem that there was an advanced civilization in that part of the country long before the time of Christ. Cities of different periods were found, one built over the other, the earlier ones having been buried. The expeditions also returned with great wealth of embroidered tapestries, beautifully decorated pottery, some in the shapes of animals and serpents. One of a llama design showed five toes on the forefeet instead of the present split hoof. Llama skeletons showing the same characteristics were also discovered.

Light Harmful to Medicine

Light is so helpful to sick persons does not do their medicines any good. In fact so many of these delicate upon exposure to light that druggists have authorized a special study to discover containers which will protect their medicines and chemicals from the harmful light. In some cases light has been found to preserve the medicinal virtues of a preparation, but in others they are definitely harmful. The changes which patients notice in the colors of medicines is usually indicative of change in the medical properties. The green color of some iron preparations changes to an unpleasant brown. Bright yellow ointments turn brown or green. Tinctures and fluid extracts made from vegetable drugs turn a dark color and deposit sediments. Serums and other blood products lose their ability to cure or prevent disease.

This Fortune Teller Out of the Ordinary

"Of course, I don't believe in fortune tellers and all that bunk, but I went to him just out of curiosity. Betty swears by him. She says he told her things about herself that even she didn't know. So I went to him just out of curiosity. Well, my dear, he said I had the most extraordinary crystal. He'd never seen a crystal as extraordinary as mine. He said my aura just glinted with fame and fortune. He said that I would make a wonderful writer. Yes, he said he saw pens in my crystal. And I'm going to travel. Maybe not this year, but next year or the year after. He didn't say exactly where I was going, but he distinctly saw a train or a boat in my crystal. And listen to this, dear. He said I was going to marry a tallish, sort of dark man with grayish-blue eyes. Isn't that a perfect description of Fred? He isn't exactly tall, but he is more dark than light and his eyes are more gray than blue. I'm sure he means Fred. He said we'd be married next summer or the winter after that. It's really quite remarkable the things he tells you. Of course, I don't really believe in fortune tellers and I know it's all foolish, but he's awfully good and you must go to him—just out of curiosity."—Kansas City Times.

Jewish Wailing Place

The Place of Wailing is an enclosed place near the mosque of Jerusalem, where the Jews congregate every Friday to lament the fall of Israel and pray for its restoration. The wall in front of which they gather is 156 feet in length and 50 feet in height. The nine lowest courses of stone consist of large blocks. Above there are 15 courses of small stones. Some of the lower courses may have belonged to Herod's temple.

When Memory Falters

How true, it is sometimes to collect things into memory! How difficult it is to get it to work well when years have dulled its use, or rusted its hinges. Old folk find they cannot recall names as they did formerly. They forget things in fashion almost ludicrous, when compared with that of other days. The little wells of memory do not now dry open, readily as they once did. Human mechanism is not made to last forever as it is made now. No matter how well it is trained it will no more go on always, than will any other machinery. Even steel will not preserve its elasticity forever. Big bridges have to be replaced at times, generally by piecemeal to save expense. Some conceal it well, some fight against it at a period of life, for that way apoplexy lies.

Too Much Sleep Possible

Dr. Risien Russell raises the point that just as most people eat too much there is a probability that many indulge in too much sleep. But this does not apply to children.

Oh, this is very Unusual

But no more so than the request we are making. We crave bottles. Not just any—old bottles, but milk bottles, empty ones, our bottles, the ones we own.

We deliver our milk in crystal clear glass containers because that is the method. You no doubt take this action for granted and never give it a thought.

Perhaps you some times forget to set out the empty bottles. If only one or two forgot we would not complain—but when 10 to 20% of the bottles do not come back you must admit it is rather discouraging and expensive for us. It means added cost, work and worry.

We would much rather devote this money and energy to improving our service, for your benefit, but we must have your assistance, and by that—set out your bottle every evening. It is not much to ask but it means profit or loss for us. You must have milk, and we cannot supply it if we don't get reasonable cooperation.

We are positive you will help us.

CHIC COSTUME

Gray and black combine to form a pleasing whole in the street costume worn by Diane Ellis, Pathe featured player. A skirt of plaited black French flannel is topped with a belted blouse of the same material in gray. Chic off-the-face-hat of gray handkerchief felt, gray hose, gloves and bag and black patent leather shoes are appropriate accessories. The coat is a gray tweed model and is made with the popular standing collar. The flannel blouse is long-sleeved so that the costume is complete without the coat.

Oh, this is very Unusual

But no more so than the request we are making. We crave bottles. Not just any—old bottles, but milk bottles, empty ones, our bottles, the ones we own.

We deliver our milk in crystal clear glass containers because that is the method. You no doubt take this action for granted and never give it a thought.

Perhaps you some times forget to set out the empty bottles. If only one or two forgot we would not complain—but when 10 to 20% of the bottles do not come back you must admit it is rather discouraging and expensive for us. It means added cost, work and worry.

We would much rather devote this money and energy to improving our service, for your benefit, but we must have your assistance, and by that—set out your bottle every evening. It is not much to ask but it means profit or loss for us. You must have milk, and we cannot supply it if we don't get reasonable cooperation.

We are positive you will help us.
